Vehicular homicide investigation in SW Portland results in criminal charges being filed

Today, Multnomah County District Attorney Rod Underhill announced that a three count charging document was filed against 30-year old Ivan Cam for allegedly causing the death of 39-year-old Iulia Hanczarek.

Cam is charged with one count of manslaughter in the second degree, one count of driving under the influence of intoxicants, and one count of reckless driving.

According to court documents, this investigation started on March 17, 2020 when Portland Police responded to a vehicular crash involving a pedestrian near the intersection of Southwest Barbur Boulevard and Southwest Parkhill Drive.

During the investigation, law enforcement learned that shortly before the crash Cam was at a downtown Portland bar where he consumed at least two drinks, according to court documents.

Cam told police he was traveling approximately 50 miles per hour when his window “suddenly exploded,” according to court documents. After the impact, Cam stopped his vehicle, turned it around which is when he realized he struck a pedestrian. Cam called 9-1-1 and remained on scene until police responded, according to court documents.

When officers arrived and contacted Cam, they reported noticing a smell of alcohol coming from his breath, according to court documents.

This case is being investigated by the Portland Police Bureau’s Major Crash Team.

Like in all criminal and civil matters, electronic copies of court documents, which are not subject to a protective order, are available to the public through the Oregon eCourt Information (OECI) system.

No additional information can be released by the Multnomah County District Attorney’s Office at this time pursuant to the Oregon Rules of Professional Conduct.

A charging document is only an accusation of a crime. Cam is innocent unless and until proven guilty.
